

Business Teacher Education Journal CALL FOR REVIEWERS

The Business Teacher Education Journal, formerly the NABTE Review, is a refereed journal published annually in the fall as a separate publication and in the spring as a part of the April issue of Business Education Forum by the National Association for Business Teacher Education. Submissions are made to the editor by August 15 who then forwards the copies to the reviewers. Each reviewer will receive from 3-5 manuscripts shortly after September 1, read and evaluate the manuscripts using a rating sheet, and return the reviews to the editor by the end of October. Although it is difficult to estimate the exact time commitment of a reviewer, it is expected that a typical reviewer would commit about 15 hours to the review process each year (a maximum of about 3 hours per manuscript).

The selection of reviewers is based on regional balance. Nominations for reviewers are sought from the regional (Western, Mountain Plains, North Central, Southern, and Eastern) business education associations. Self nominations and recommendations from other business teacher educators are also sought by the editor. From this group, a final review team is determined.

Please indicate that you are willing to serve as a reviewer by emailing ginny.richerson@murraystate.edu the following information by August 1, 2011.
